How United Way's volunteer-based fund distribution process makes a difference for our community

United Way's distribution process is made up of volunteers - people just like you. Our Community Impact fund distribution committees get feedback from our area's nonprofit sector about the needs of our community, and they make funding decisions so your donation works on the Mid-South's most critical challenges.

No other group has United Way's expertise and volunteer base to make the difficult decisions about where to send local contributions to impact our area's most critical needs. When you give to United Way's fundraising campaign, you are participating in the most effective system for improving lives in the entire Mid-South area.
